Weather squadron forecasts future

Accurately forecasting the future weather of Europe, Africa, parts of Russia, the Middle East and Southwest Asia falls onto more than 100 pairs of shoulders belonging to the Airmen of the 21st Operational Weather Squadron stationed on Vogelweh. Their mission is to provide precise weather information used by war-fighters throughout the world.

“We establish a network of experts to form a conclusion of what we believe will happen and how it will affect the mission at large,” said Master Sgt. Raymond Ford, 21st OWS theater weather operations NCOIC. “Providing commanders and operators with highly accurate, timely and relevant environmental situation awareness in support of the U.S. Air Force, joint and command operations is critical in establishing successful operating procedures.”

“Without the 21st, air operations would be extremely hazardous, ground missions would be impacted and the Air Force’s mission would suffer.”

— Senior Airman Andrew Dudish, 21st OWS

Execution of airlifts, troop movements and protection of government property are still subject to weather patterns. By utilizing skilled technicians across multiple commands, the 21st helps predict and develop a plan in an ever-changing environment.

“Without the 21st, air operations would be extremely hazardous, ground missions would be impacted and the Air Force’s mission would suffer,” said Senior Airman Andrew Dudish, 21st OWS regional forecaster and weather briefer.

Weather forecasts are used to accurately plan flying missions, guard aircraft against inclement conditions and

Snow removal process runs like well-oiled machine

by Master Sgt. Adegboyega Adeyemo
786th Civil Engineer Squadron

Every winter the 786th Civil Engineer Squadron fights an uphill battle to keep Mother Nature at bay. To keep the mission going, the "snow team," which includes the 786th CES Heavy Equipment shop and volunteers from other CE shops, stands ready to face the blustering winds and bitter cold in order to keep runways and streets clear of snow and ice. This team's commitment to the mission is so fierce they were able to keep the base and runways fully functional throughout the 2012-2013 snow season, even when international airports were forced to shut down.

Their unrelenting effort resulted in the reception of 12 diverted aircraft from surrounding bases. A high-caliber operation of this magnitude requires diligent planning, proper coordination and a flexible, dedicated labor force.

Long before the snow starts falling, information and records are gathered and presented to the Snow and Ice Control Committee. The S&ICC is made up of the 786th CES heavy equipment team and commanders from across the wing. The S&ICC meets twice annually. The first meeting of the calendar year is the post-season brief, which is typically scheduled between April and May. In this meeting, the S&ICC reviews the previous season outcomes, highlights the best practices and identifies improvements to be implemented before the next season. For example, changes to the priority areas or route classifications are addressed in the post-season brief. After this committee adjourns, the snow team subject matter experts prepare a budget and execution strategy to present at the second annual meeting, called the pre-season brief. This meeting shows 86th Airlift Wing leadership the snow team's readiness to tackle the upcoming winter. The pre-season brief is used to identify shortfalls and work around strategies for dealing with unpredictable snow events.

A critical piece to the snow team's efficiency is their equipment, and the 86th Vehicle Readiness Squadron plays a vital role in this process. Every year, VRS ensures the snow fleet is properly maintained to handle the rigors of plowing and sweeping throughout the winter season. By providing timely snow equipment delivery, VRS ensures the 786th CES can properly train its personnel on the equipment to face the upcoming season. Additionally, VRS provides 24/7 on-call service response to downed snow equipment to keep the mission going. The basic snow fleet includes plows, brooms, blades and blowers, which are attached to heavy equipment.

Enduring five to seven months of 24/7 coverage for the airfield, roads and parking lots is a daunting task for the personnel. To ease this burden, the snow SMEs gather support from other

The journey to excellence: Are we there yet?

by Chief Master Sgt. Lewis Holston Jr.
37th Airlift Squadron
superintendent

As I prepared the commencement speech for the recent Community College of the Air Force graduation ceremony, my mind kept returning to a familiar theme. I thought of this important accomplishment's place on the journey to excellence.

As with every journey, the trip is often more challenging than the arrival. I thought of my sons and their attitudes when we went on family trips. Four words that haunt every parent came to mind: Are we there yet?

This question is usually asked frequent enough to drive a person crazy. Even worse is when we finally arrive, the question is usually, "When are we leaving?" On our journey to excellence, are we there yet? Leaders, families and Airmen should internalize this question in different ways as they plot a course on the journey to excellence.

Leaders, are we there yet? Have we reached excellence? Whatever the opinion, the solution to how we get there is vested in our people. Allowing time for our Airmen to develop the skills and aptitude needed to be technical experts within their specialties is essential.

The Air Force mission is growing in complexity. Executing the mission to fly, fight and win requires our Airmen to attain the professional military and technical education needed to not only accomplish detailed tasks, but also lead their Airmen in doing the same.

Our Airmen are the answer to how we attain excellence on our journey. The fuel that propels any Airman on the journey to excellence is our families.

Families have always been there on the journey to excellence. Families were there when Airmen had to work late hours to launch humanitarian operations. Families were there when service members had to take yet another deployment and leave before Christmas.

Our families are already at the journey's destination; our families are excellent and put up with a lot of hardship in the members' absence and are cherished. They allow the member to focus on their journey to excellence.

Airmen, Soldiers, Sailors, Marines, are we there yet? On the journey to excellence, is there ever a time when we actually arrive? Is there a time when a process can't be improved to make mission execution more effective? When should we let our guard down?

In this environment of more with less, the work is never done. As one chapter closes, another opens. In our roles as leaders, families and members executing the mission, there will never be an arrival point. We are not there yet, but we're getting closer daily. Buckle up and enjoy the ride on the journey to excellence. Congratulations again to the CCAF class of 2013!

PII violators will have AFNET accounts locked

by Maj. Brooke Brander
Air Force Space Command
Public Affairs

PETERSON AIR FORCE BASE, Colo. — Individuals who inappropriately store and transmit personally identifiable information over the Air Force Network will now have their accounts locked in response to the violation.

“We are taking several steps to improve notification and reporting of PII incidents,” said Gen. William L. Shelton, commander of Air Force Space Command. “My intent is to increase awareness within the Air Force as part of my responsibility to ensure the security and defense of the AFNET and its users.

PII violations create both a personal and operational risk for all of us.”

The 68th Network Warfare Squadron and 352nd Network Warfare Squadron, as the Cyberspace Defense Analysis Weapon System, are actively monitoring the AFNET for PII breaches and violations. When a PII breach is identified, it is reported to the 624th Operations Center and the formal reporting process is initiated.

The 624th OC, as the Cyber Command and Control Mission System Weapon System, then reports the AFNET PII breach to the 24th Air Force Commander, which will result in locking the violator’s AFNET account and notification to the individual’s wing commander.

“Beginning Oct. 24, we began locking out the AFNET account of individuals who were found to be inappropriately transmitting PII data via the AFNET,” said Maj. Gen. J. Kevin McLaughlin, commander of 24th Air Force and Air Forces Cyber. “A violator’s account will only be unlocked once the first O-6 in their chain of command certifies that the individual has accomplished all necessary actions, to include remedial training.”

These new actions are in addition to, and do not circumvent or replace, the normal Privacy Act notification process which is already in place throughout the Air Force. Air Force Instruction 33-332 governs the PII breach reporting process as well as the consequences for PII violations.

PII is any information about an individual that can be used directly, or in connection with other data, to identify, contact or locate that person and can include such information as: full name, address, Social Security number, medical, educational, financial, legal and employment records.

A PII breach is defined as a loss of control, compromise, unauthorized disclosure, unauthorized acquisition, unauthorized access or any similar term referring to situations where persons other than authorized users, and for an other than authorized purpose, have access or potential access to PII, whether physical or electronic.

Encrypting PII allows secure transmission. Additional information on protecting PII can be found of the Air Force Portal under the Cyber Threats and Information tab as well as at <http://dpclo.defense.gov/privacy/>.

Hagel: Six priorities shape future defense institutions

by Cheryl Pellerin
American Forces Press Service

WASHINGTON — In the months since the 2012 defense strategic guidance first reflected a new budget reality, Pentagon officials and military leaders have been working on the department’s longer-term budget and strategy, Defense Secretary Chuck Hagel said here this morning.

Hagel discussed how the department would adapt to a changing strategic and fiscal landscape. In the keynote address before the Center for Strategic and International Studies’ Global Security Forum, Hagel said a needed realignment of missions and resources is being undertaken across the department that will require significant change across every aspect of the enterprise.

“I have identified six areas of focus for our budget and strategic planning efforts going forward,” the secretary said.

“Working closely with the service secretaries, service chiefs, combatant commanders and DOD leaders,” he added, “these six priorities will help determine the shape of our defense institutions for years to come.”

The priorities include institutional reform, force planning, preparing for a prolonged military readiness challenge, protecting investments in emerging capabilities, balancing capacity and capability across the services, and balancing personnel responsibilities with a sustainable compensation policy.

During his first weeks in office, Hagel said, he directed a Strategic Choices and Management Review that over several months identified options for reshaping the force and institutions in the face of difficult budget scenarios.

“That review pointed to the stark choices and tradeoffs in military capabilities that will be required if sequester-level cuts persist, but it also identified opportunities to make changes and reforms,” Hagel said.

“Above all,” he added, “it underscored the reality that DOD still possesses resources and options. We will need to more efficiently match our resources to our most important national security requirements. We can do things better, we must do things better, and we will.”

Addressing the six priorities that will shape future defense efforts, the secretary began with a continued focus on institutional reform.

Coming out of more than a decade of war and budget growth, he said, there is a clear opportunity and need to reshape the defense enterprise, including paring back the world’s largest back office. This summer, Hagel announced a 20 percent reduction in headquarters budgets across the department, beginning with the Office of the Secretary of Defense.

“Our goal is not only to direct more of our resources to real military capabilities and readiness,” Hagel said,

“but to make organizations flatter and more responsive to the needs of our men and women in uniform.”

Closures

- The Family Housing Maintenance Office and U-Fix-It Stores will be closed for annual inventory from Saturday to Monday. The maintenance hotline will still be available 24/7 for emergency service calls only. They will reopen for normal business hours on Tuesday.

- The KMC Housing offices will be closed Monday and Nov. 28 and 29 in observance of holidays. Offices will also close at 11:30 a.m. Nov. 20 and Nov. 22 for training or office functions.

- Romano's Macaroni Grill in the Kaiserslautern Military Community Center will be temporarily closed due to maintenance.

Commissary closes

The Ramstein Commissary will close Monday through Thursday to move to a new, renovated building. The commissary will re-open at 7:30 a.m. Nov. 15 for early bird shopping. The Vogelweh and Sembach commissaries will remain open during the closure times, and they are anticipating the expected increase in business.

TFSC number changes

Effective Nov. 15, the Total Force Service Center's phone number will be changed to DSN 665-0102 or commercial 210-565-0102. The current TFSC DSN (665-5000) and commercial (210-565-5000) will no longer be active effective Nov. 22.

Vet clinic holiday hours

The Kaiserslautern Veterinary Treatment

Facility will be closed on the following days:

Nov. 27 – End of month inventory

Nov. 28 and 29 – Thanksgiving

Dec. 20 – KVTF function

Dec. 24 and 25 – Christmas

Dec. 31 – End of month inventory

Jan. 1 – New Year's Day

Retirement ceremony

Chief Master Sgt. Kenneth Bourns, 2nd Air Postal Squadron chief enlisted manager, will have a retirement ceremony after more than 30 years of active-duty service at 1 p.m. Nov. 26 at the Ramstein Officers' Club, Suite 4.

CFC-0 campaign ongoing

The Combined Federal Campaign-Overseas campaign has been extended until Dec. 6, despite the campaign's suspension in the continental U.S. The contributions of service members and their families assist people in need throughout the KMC, as well as across the nation. Contact your CFC community area project officer for more information or to make a donation.

Maternity ABUs

The Defense Logistics Agency has recently announced the new maternity Rip-Stop Airman Battle Uniform is expected to be available in the spring 2014. Due to this, DLA arranged emergency procurement of the current maternity ABUs. A total of 16 sizes of coats and trousers previously unavailable are now in stock. Additional sizes are expected to arrive this month.

Neighborhood Watch Program

The 569th U.S. Forces Police Squadron is implementing a new process to streamline the flow of information to the general public. Instead of consolidating intelligence, sending it through the operations section and presenting it during monthly meetings, information pertaining to criminal trends within the KMC will be disseminated directly to Neighborhood Watch block captains via email. To take part in this new initiative, email 569usfps.s2@ramstein.af.mil. Neighborhood Watch training will be conducted by the 569th USFPS/S3O. After training, participants will be added to the distribution list.

LRMC seeks volunteers

Landstuhl Regional Medical Center is looking for volunteers to assist in its patient administration division for work dealing with medical documentation. Training will be provided. Volunteers who are CPC-A certified may count this volunteer time toward having the apprentice level removed from their coding credentials. Volunteers must be a government ID cardholder willing and able to pass a background check and receive a common access card. All volunteers must process through the American Red Cross at LRMC who may be reached at 486-7298 or 06371-86-7298. Interested volunteers can also check out the requirements to become a LRMC volunteer at <https://www.facebook.com/LandstuhlARC/> notes.

First airdrop with specialized equipment achieved in Europe

Story and photo by
Senior Airman Hailey Haux
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

POWIDZ AIR TRANSPORT BASE, Poland — The U.S. and Polish air forces completed the first successful European airdrop utilizing specialized equipment designed to improve target accuracy and decrease potential collateral damage by the supply bundles Oct. 17 here.

Members from both air forces teamed up to effectively test the Joint Precision Airdrop System, which has the capability to put bundles on point, allowing for a reduced recovery time for personnel on the ground.

Although JPADS has been used in operations throughout the Middle East, it was recently employed for the first time in Europe, and Airmen from the 435th Contingency Response Group, the 37th Airlift Squadron and several other organizations from Ramstein were able to actively participate and see its capabilities first hand.

Airmen were able to work hand-in-hand with Polish air force members to organize, certify and successfully execute the air drop in Poland.

JPADS is an airdrop container with a GPS on it to provide the precise guidance to where the bundles need to be dropped.

“Much like the controls a jumper has while in the air, JPADS has a pulley system inside that allows it to steer,” said Army Staff Sgt. Tylor Buckingham, 5th Quartermaster parachute rigger.

Bundles without JPADS would normally float with the wind, potentially causing them to run into hills, mountains or other bundles. Now, with JPADS, bundles can be dropped at a long stand-off distance to de-conflict with terrain or potential threat near the intended drop zone, allowing 435th CRG personnel to provide more timely and accurate support in European and African theaters.

Master Sgt. Jason Beebe, 37th Airlift Squadron loadmaster, prepares the Joint Precision Airdrop System bundle for the first test employment during a joint training mission in Europe Oct. 23 at Powidz Air Transport Base, Poland. The JPADS is equipped with a GPS, allowing the bundles to land within feet of the point of impact, ensuring they get to war fighters.

“The system on each bundle has the capability to talk to one another, which prevents multiple parachutes from getting tangled together,” Buckingham said. “With all its capabilities, it makes the bundles 20 times quicker to recover.”

Without Poland’s commitment to the Aviation Detachment’s training rotations, the event couldn’t have been possible.

“I am very proud that Poland was able to assist (the) U.S. in testing this equipment,” said Lt. Col. Krzysztof Szymaniec, Polish air force C-130 squadron commander, who marked the drop a successful demonstration of the cooperation between the U.S.

and Polish air forces.

The Polish land forces assisted in clearing and securing the range for the drop while the U.S. had four personnel at the site to provide drop zone control and clearance and to recover the bundle.

The first employment of this system here was dropped from 5,500 feet above sea level from a C-130J Super Hercules and landed about 20 to 30 feet from the desired point of impact.

Due to JPADS, members of the U.S. Armed Forces and its allies are able to feel that sense of relief when heading out to retrieve pallets of supplies, knowing they won’t have to go searching for them.

Flight medic receives medal for ‘long, very difficult mission’

Story and photo by
Mark Heeter
U.S. Army Garrison
Rheinland-Pfalz

The Soldiers of Company C, 1st Battalion, 214th Aviation, “Dustoff,” added another chapter to their long and deep connection with the Marine Corps Oct. 30, when Staff Sgt. Tim Mika was awarded the Air Medal for his actions in saving two Marines in Afghanistan on May 25, 2011.

Fighting a brutal sandstorm that grounded the Blackhawk through his first two attempts to head to two Marines injured by an improvised exploding device, the pilot finally lifted off with the critical assistance of Mika, a flight medic with nearly 17 years in the Army.

“It was a very difficult situation to recover our Marine brothers,” said Maj. Jesse Delgado, Dustoff commander, at the beginning of the award ceremony. “It was a long and very difficult mission.”

Unable to launch when the call for medevac came in, Mika continuously guided and advised his pilot of conditions of both the weather and the wounded Marines, before using a river below to guide them to their goal.

“You could not see anything,” said Mika, who, immediately upon touchdown, sank into 18 inches of mud.

Still, according to the narrative accompanying the medal, “this did not stop him from locating the patients, triaging them and securing them back on the aircraft in less than three minutes.”

One of the Marines needed emergency surgery and more than six units of blood, according to the narrative.

The unit has repeatedly deployed in support of Marine forces, dating to the Vietnam War, a fact that Marine Lt. Col. Pete Faerber, officer in charge of the Marine Detachment at Landstuhl Regional Medical Center, noticed as soon as he met the Soldiers wearing Marine patches.

“It’s fantastic. We’ve got a great relationship with these guys,” said Faerber, who pinned the medal on Mika at the Landstuhl heliport. “They’ve constantly support-

Mika, who has been “shot at, mortared at, rocketed at and stabbed in the back of the helicopter,” still calls his job as a flight medic the best job he has ever had and relishes the chance to aid those in need.

“Sergeant Mika is the epitome of what Dustoff is. He’s everything that’s good about Dustoff,” Delgado said. “What is that? He’s going to come and get you.”

prepare the base infrastructure against the potential damage severe weather may cause.

“All flights out of our area of responsibility depend on weather support to provide the information needed to progress safely, effectively and successfully in the air,” said Staff Sgt. James Yonko, 21st OWS regional supervisor. “Forecasts allow locations to prepare for weather incident days in advance to prevent damage and destruction to the installation and potentially save lives on the ground and in the air.”

Understanding how weather may impact a mission is a heavy responsibility, and the 21st OWS Airmen use their expertise to mitigate one more variable in the chain of mission success.

86th AW chief of military justice CAN ‘handle the truth’

by Senior Airman Whitney Stork

86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

When it comes to handling legal issues, Capt. Brenda Gohr, 86th Airlift Wing Judge Advocate chief of military justice and Hamlin University School of Law graduate, is a key factor in ensuring Ramstein’s Law Center provides the best legal advice to first sergeants and commanders.

Q: What do you do in your job?

A: I oversee all of the military justice actions on Ramstein to include the tenant units and geographically separated units. As the first line of defense for first sergeants and commanders, they come to my team for advice on military legal issues. I also oversee all military justice training for commanders and play a significant role in the quarterly status of discipline meeting, keeping the wing commander informed of issues in Ramstein’s area of responsibility.

Q: What is the best part of your job?

A: The best part is the interpersonal relationships I have with the commanders and first sergeants. It’s all about helping people and getting to work with them. I feel like I make an impact by providing valuable advice to leadership, contributing to maintaining good order and discipline across base.

Q: What is the hardest part of your job?

A: As a senior captain Judge Advocate, it can be challenging sometimes making phone calls to shirts and commanders knowing it’s bad news. As legal professionals, we owe it to our Airmen and the mission to do the research and provide the best possible advice for every case.

Q: What is unique about your duty position?

A: As a company grade officer, I’m in charge of all the junior captains and lieutenants in my division. The expertise they bring to the office is priceless. They give everything they have to support Team Ramstein every day, and as the officer in charge of such a diverse group of military justice professionals, I owe it to them to give them 110 percent because that’s what they give me.

Q: What advice would you give to Airmen to stay out of trouble?

A: Don’t be afraid to use your chain of command. Talk to your supervisors and first sergeants if you have any questions. The biggest thing is to think about the choices you will make, because for every choice there is a consequence you have to be willing to face no matter the outcome.

Kapaun hosts NATO professional development seminar

 86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

The U.S. Air Forces in Europe and Air Forces Africa Kissing Academy hosted the annual NATO Professional Development Seminar Oct. 30 at the Kapaun Air Station NCO Academy auditorium.

The seminar covered cross-cultural awareness, providing an opportunity for leaders from allied nations to bring their cultural diversity and perspective to NATO members, including KMC service members.

The daylong, interactive seminar included introductions, a cultural diversity brief, a NATO mission brief, an ethics brief and a foreign service panel with a representative from the British, German and Italian air forces, as well as the Canadian army.

"This seminar brings a perspective of understanding differences, being aware of them and being able to operate in a multinational environment," said Tech. Sgt. Lacey Brown, USAFE-AFAFRICA Kissing Academy instructor. "It is important to understand the differences and the way we all come together to get the job done, especially being overseas."

Royal Air Force Warrant Officer Peter Polidano, NATO Headquarters Air Command senior enlisted leader, gave a few words to start the seminar and was a part of the foreign service panel.

"If each individual has taken just one thing from this seminar, we have made progress, because they will have a better understanding of cultural diversity, ethics and NATO itself," Polidano said. "When individuals are educating themselves, they are making themselves better Airmen, better Sailors and better Soldiers."

Understanding, awareness, patience and communication were key aspects covered during the seminar. Brown said these characteristics assist her in reaching international students.

"I've personally hosted Turkish, Bulgarian and Czech Republic students," Brown said. "The characteristics we went over today allow us to reach them, bring them into the fold and ensure they get the information they need, so they can take it back to their countries and strengthen their enlisted corps."

The topics explained help everyday Airmen better understand how cultural differences affect working with allied nations.

"Listening to the panel speak opened my mind to a lot I had not known about, such as how NATO nations collaborate," said Tech. Sgt. Bartolo Medel, 86th Maintenance

Group quality assurance inspector. "Being able to take a look at things from another perspective enables us to see the responsibility we all share as nations within NATO."

Personal stories were shared and scenarios were given in an effort to shine light on allied military relations. The seminar's attendees received tools enabling them to be a better fit in today's international culture.

Delivery from Deutschland

With the holidays around the corner, one can't help but think of friends and family and contemplate what to send home to let them know you're thinking about them. But the question on everyone's mind should be, "How can I get gifts to my loved ones?"

That's where the 86th Communications Squadron comes in.

"Our job is to process all incoming and outgoing mail," said Senior Airman Leonardra Clayton, 86th CS postal specialist.

Throughout the year, personnel at Ramstein post offices receive and deliver thousands of packages. As if they do not already have a full workload being the largest post office in the Department of Defense based on volume of mail handled and number of customers serviced, they undoubtedly see a spike in operations during a specific couple months out of the year.

"We're always getting mail, but it's the busiest during the holidays and PCS season," she said. "On an average day, our delivery trucks will drop 700 to over 1,000 pieces of mail."

With so many packages going in and out, it is important to make sure customer bring their packages to the post office early to ensure they are delivered to their destinations on time.

"If you want your mail to arrive home in time for the holidays, I recommend sending them in mid-November," Clayton said. "Beginning Nov. 15, we will start working 12-hour shifts because of how much mail we receive."

Even though the hours are long and the mail never stops, there are moments that bring a smile to these Airmen.

"It makes me happy when parents come in with their kids and the kids are so excited because they have a white slip letting them know their package is at the post office," Clayton said. "It makes me feel like Santa

Senior Airman Jonathan Lee, 86th Communications Squadron finance clerk, moves a package to the delivery area Oct. 24 at the Ramstein Northside Post Office. As the holidays approach, Airmen working at the post office will work longer hours to ensure operations continue to run smoothly.

Claus. I can't believe I've made someone's day by just giving them a box."

The positive attitude shows in the Airmen's job performance.

"The Airmen that work at the post office are really courteous and professional," said Master Sgt. Willie Cooper, Headquarters U.S. Air Forces in Europe and Air Forces Africa travel planner to commander. "I've never had a problem with my packages getting to where I send them."

Whether it's a happy holiday postcard, letter or gift, the 86th CS will work hard to get it where it needs to go.

'Always Ready' battalion conducts training resiliency week

Public Affairs

Soldiers, officers, NCOs and Department of the Army civilians from the 21st Theater Sustainment Command's 21st Special Troops Battalion went "back to basics" and conducted a training readiness week Oct. 28 to Nov. 1 in the KMC.

The training week afforded every member of the "Always Ready" battalion an opportunity to attend mandatory, annual classes regardless of their schedule. The 21st STB leadership ensured classes covering Sexual Harassment/Assault Response and Prevention, cold weather driving and safety, Army Substance Abuse Program, equal opportunity, suicide prevention, law of war, fraternization, Threat Assessment and Reporting Program, sponsorship and the Hearing Protection Program were available daily at varying times to ensure every Soldier could attend. Subject matter specialists from the 21st TSC, U.S. Army Garrison Rheinland-Pfalz and the KMC came to Kleber Kaserne's KMC Onstage to instruct.

"This training week is an opportunity for Soldiers and civilians alike to get their annual, mandatory training completed without impacting their individual missions," said Lt. Col. Patricia K. Wright, the 21st STB commander. "We are facilitators to improving the readiness of the 21st Theater Sustainment Command."

The STB also gave Soldiers eight opportunities to take their semiannual Army physical fitness test. Testing personnel could perform their push-ups, sit-ups and two-mile run in the early morning or mid-afternoon as they chose. Having so many opportunities also afforded Soldiers a chance to retake their test if unhappy with an earlier attempt.

The "First in Support" team conducted its biannual readiness week Oct. 28 to Nov. 1 at various locations in the KMC to ensure all Soldiers and Department of the Army civilians received required annual, biannual and quarterly training requirements as well as ensure administrative individual readiness is maintained. This individual and unit training is to ensure Team 21 is "Ready Strong."

German Polizei Corner

No wide vehicles in construction area on A6

Commuters on autobahn A6 direction Mannheim who drive through the bridge construction site must keep in mind that when driving in the left lane, their vehicles can't be wider than 2 meters (78.78 inches), including the side mirrors.

Then, toward the end of the zone, it can be 2.20 meters (86.61 inches) wide.

German traffic sign 264 states that no vehicles over 2 meters wide should be driving in that particular lane.

The warning sign is put up at the beginning of the construction area. Motorists driving with a wider vehicle can be fined €20.

If driving an oversized vehicle in this lane causes an accident, according to German law, motorists can be held at fault. Polizei noted that mainly trucks, SUVs and mini vans are the ones endangering others when passing in the left lane.

“Creatures of your wildest dreams” and “things that go bump in the night” took to the streets of Donnelly Park looking for unsuspecting victims or guarding mythical sugary treasures Oct. 31. Trick-or-treaters of all ages attended this year’s Trunk-or-Treat, which included food provided by the USO, movies, games, contests and, most importantly, candy for all those daring to get close enough. # Ramstein Commissary plans Nov. 15 soft opening

A newly renovated commissary is scheduled to open its doors in a soft opening Nov. 15 on Ramstein that will include a wide range of improvements designed to make every shopping trip a pleasant one.

In the meantime, the commissary will be closed Monday through Thursday to finish last-minute preparations in time for early bird shopping beginning at 7:30 a.m. Nov. 15.

The renovated commissary, which has been under construction since late fall 2012, is an expansive, modern facility featuring produce, meat and grocery departments; an international delicatessen and bakery; fresh sandwiches to go; rotisserie chicken; salad bar; 13 regular and 12 self-checkouts with an in-line customer service desk; and a stock assortment of more than 12,000 items.

Customers will notice several improvements following the extensive $43.5 million renovation paid by surcharge funds. Some of the features include expanded square footage for wider aisles and more checkouts, as well as refrigeration, lighting and climate control systems upgrades to increase the store's energy efficiency.

"Our entire team is excited for this day to finally arrive," said commissary store director Harry Nichols. "I'm certain our customers will feel the same when they walk in and see the expanded aisles and added checkout lanes. Also, the energy efficiency upgrades we've made to make it an environmentally friendly facility are an added bonus."

A formal ribbon-cutting ceremony is scheduled to take place early next year. During next week's commissary closure, the Vogelweh Commissary will operate from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Monday, and 7:30 a.m. to 9 p.m. Tuesday through Thursday.

The Ramstein store averages more than 100,000 customers a month and serves a customer base of more than 25,000 authorized shoppers.

shops within the 786th CES. They create and implement a working schedule to provide extra manpower from the squadron. Together, the snow team completes annual familiarization training, which includes equipment operation, maintenance procedures, formal instruction, airfield familiarization, line badge acquisition and safety.

When winter finally makes its mark, the snow team springs into action, operating 24 hours a day until the roads are free and clear. The pattern in which every area is cleared is driven by an established priority plan that is approved by 86th AW leadership. All paved areas will eventually be cleared, but it is important that the highest priority routes are tackled first to maximize safety and maintain mission capability.

It is important for Airmen to keep in mind that everyone plays a role in snow removal. While the snow team is out clearing our airfield and streets, it is everyone's personal responsibility to ensure their household sidewalks and driveways are clear of snow and ice. Facility managers are responsible for areas within 100 feet of their facilities, including all sidewalks, stairs, fire hydrants and dumpsters. Be sure to have shovels, brooms and salt stocked in your facility before the forecast predicts snow.

Preparing for the winter and snow removal are year-round, non-stop processes that continue well after the end of one winter season and into the next. When the snow is flying, the team runs like a well-oiled machine. When the skies are clear, the team is still busy preparing for the next weather event. So, this coming season when you see the plows coming through, wave to the operator or to the folks with the shovels to show them your appreciation.

Saving money with FSS Club Card

by Senior Airman Whitney Stork
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Today's culture of financial responsibility has every Airman searching for ways to save the Air Force money. Though Airmen today are extremely resourceful at finding ways to keep Uncle Sam from hitting the unemployment line, the dollars bleeding out of their pockets is just as important. Fortunately, the 86th Force Support Squadron has a program to do just that.

The 86th FSS offers military members the opportunity to buy a club card membership, which allows Airmen to potentially save money.

The club card is a credit card that offers discounts to participating organizations on base along with personal benefits to club members. Organizations such as JR Rockers, E Street Cafe and Pizza Gallery all offer varying discounts on meals when the club card is used.

"The club card is essentially a credit card with benefits," said Charles Mullins, 86th FSS business operation flight deputy chief. "The more you use it, the more benefits and discounts you're going to get back from it."

The card membership carries a rank-based fee. The monthly card fees are airman basic to senior airman: $3; staff sergeant to chief master sergeant: $8; and all officers: $20. The club card has a variety of benefits and programs for members. Some of these include:

- Free quarterly membership breakfast or dinner
- 10 percent discount on personal functions at clubs

- Borrowing or catering items at no cost
- Club member birthday meal program
- Kids' club member program (12 and under)

"This is a great card for all ranks," said Bret Helenius, 86th FSS marketing director. "Members have to pay a small monthly fee, but with the discounts and benefits this card has, it easily pays for itself."

Airmen can apply for the membership at the Ramstein Enlisted Club by filling out an application. Once the application is submitted a credit limit will be established based on the members credit score. A temporary card will be issued until the permanent card comes in.

"This membership benefits the young people especially," Mullins said. "Even if they only buy one thing in the month, it's already paid for itself. The value in the card is definitely there."

The club card membership is available to all military ranks and provides a chance to save. The card gives Airmen the opportunity to save money while utilizing some of their favorite on base restaurants and organizations.

For more information, visit the enlisted club website at www.86fss.com.

IN THE KNOW

This Week in History

Nov. 9, 1989 — East German officials opened the Berlin Wall, allowing travel from East to West Berlin. The following day, celebrating Germans began to tear the wall down. One of the ugliest and most infamous symbols of the Cold War was soon reduced to rubble that was quickly snatched up by souvenir hunters.

Nov. 10, 1775 — During the American Revolution, the Continental Congress passed a resolution stating that “two Battalions of Marines be raised” for service as landing forces for the recently formed Continental Navy. The resolution, drafted by future U.S. President John Adams and adopted in Philadelphia, created the Continental Marines and is now observed as the birth date of the U.S. Marine Corps.

Nov. 11, 1942 — On this day in 1942, Congress approved lowering the draft age to 18 and raising the upper limit to age 37.

Nov. 12, 1954 — On this day in 1954, Ellis Island, the gateway to America, shut its doors after processing more than 12 million immigrants since opening in 1892. Today, an estimated 40 percent of all Americans can trace their roots through Ellis Island, located in New York Harbor off the New Jersey coast and named for merchant Samuel Ellis, who owned the land in the 1770s.

Recipe of the Week: Oriental lentil salad

INGREDIENTS:

- 3/4 cup of little potatoes
- 1 1/4 cups of red lentils
- 3 1/4 cups vegetable broth
- 4 tablespoons pine nuts or sunflower seeds
- 1 bundle spring onions (green onions)
- 2 tablespoons apple vinegar
- Salt/pepper
- Rosemary
- 3 tablespoons sunflower or safflower oil
- 1/4 cup dried apricots
- 1/4 cup raisins

DIRECTIONS:

- Wash, boil and peel potatoes and cut them into small pieces.

- Cook red lentils in vegetable broth, for about 10 minutes, pour them off and catch the broth.
- Roast the pine nuts (or sunflower seeds) without grease, let them cool off.
- Wash the bundle of green onions and cut into thin rings.
- Stir apple vinegar with 5 tablespoons vegetable broth, add salt, pepper and rosemary.
- Add sunflower (safflower) oil.
- Cut dried apricots into thin slices and add with raisins and green onion rings to dressing.
- Add potatoes and red lentils, mix it all.
- Let it sit for about 30 minutes and scatter pine nuts over it.

Mini Tough Mudders get fit, dirty at Ramstein Youth Center

by Ronnie Juhans

Ramstein Youth Programs

Tough Mudder events are hardcore obstacle courses designed to test strength, stamina, mental grit and camaraderie. There are more than 1 million inspiring participants worldwide, and children participating in the Ramstein Youth Program's Tough Mudder Club recently increased those numbers.

The Mini-Mudders kicked off their eight-week program by designing a course filled with challenging obstacles, including downhill mud slides, exercise stations, low crawls, rappels, slack lines, rope bridges and, of course, lots of mud.

The Mudders spend 1.5 hours every week on the course to increase their levels of cardio endurance, full body fitness, mental focus, balance, agility, self-esteem and team work.

"The motivation of the Mudders working together to get every one of their teammates through every obstacle is an amazing thing to see," said Kaure Whittaker, Ramstein Youth Center assistant director.

"The kids can't stop talking about the program, and it is great to see how much fun they have while they are increasing their fitness," said Stephanie Deal, a Mudder parent.

By introducing activities based around outdoor adventure, the children learn specific skills and develop a sense of competence to successfully master tasks and build confidence as they work through challenges presented in the activities.

The goal of the program is to build a positive sense of self so children are able to apply the same strategies and processes to other challenges they face.

"The program asks kids to challenge themselves to try new things so they realize how many talents and abilities they already have and how they can use those skills to truly reach their potential," Whittaker said.

abdominal crunches in a mud pit gives the Mudders a sense of accomplishment and offers a wealth of learning opportunities.

From determining your level of physical fitness and how to improve, working as a team to ensure no one is left behind, or making a plan for what do in a tough situation, the Mudders are building life skills and making amazing memories in this once-in-a-lifetime adventure.

The battalion also provided Soldiers with the opportunity to qualify on their individual assigned weapons. The battalion ran daily weapons ranges at Breitenwald Range in Landstuhl. Firers qualified on the M-16A2 rifle or M9 pistol.

Soldiers also received hands-on Chemical, Biological, Radiological and Nuclear training. They learned the proper fit and wear of the Joint Service Lightweight Integrated Suit Technology, a protective suit worn in contaminated environments. They also learned to properly don their protective masks and tested them in the gas chamber.

Soldiers sometimes learned valuable, if somewhat painful, lessons in the chamber.

“My mask was not on properly when I entered the gas chamber, so I started coughing almost immediately,” said Staff Sgt. Crystal S. Newman, the enlisted strength management NCO for the 21st TSC personnel office. “This training is important to all Soldiers, and our instructor did a great job teaching us how to properly wear and check our masks.”

Finally, all Soldiers could update their personnel records with the battalion personnel office. They could submit new documents, awards or promotion orders at the Kleber Fitness Center.

“The goal this week was to ensure that every member of this team had the chance to update their information, get their training done, take the APFT and qualify with their weapon without hindering the 21st TSC mission,” said Command Sgt. Maj. Brian K. Mainor, the 21st STB command sergeant major. “We succeeded in getting the training, and it was a terrific training week.”

Love your child's smile

by Staff Sgt. Brittany Simpson
86th Dental Squadron

Many parents have a difficult time determining when and how much dental care their children need throughout their development, however, the 86th Dental Squadron has tips to care for children's teeth in order for them to maintain a beautiful, healthy smile.

The Ramstein Dental Clinic is holding a Little Teeth, Big Smiles clinic from 7:30 a.m. to noon Nov. 16 to provide dental care and information to toddlers and children up to 10 years old.

By appointment only, dental workers will be on hand to provide exams, cleanings, X-rays if needed, and educational services to interested parents.

Preventing cavities and helping children develop healthy oral hygiene practices starts with understanding that children's dental needs will constantly change. Beginning stages of oral hygiene includes healthier eating and drinking habits. Exposure to sugars for long periods of time can cause early childhood cavities, a disease that can quickly destroy a child's teeth.

Acids produced by bacteria can cause decay if they remain on the teeth too long and are not brushed away. This can be due to children drinking from a sippy cup or bottle that contains milk or juice. Preventing this disease is not always about what a child is eating or drinking, but how often they are drinking it.

It is suggested to give a child milk or juice all at once and then have them drink water the rest of the day.

The American Dental Association recommends:

- Don't put a baby to bed with a bottle unless it is filled with plain water. Even watered-down fruit juice or milk can increase the risk of decay.

Courtesy photo

The 86th Dental Squadron hosts the Little Teeth, Big Smiles weekend dental clinic from 7:30 a.m. to noon Nov. 16 to provide dental care and information to toddlers and children.

- Talk with a doctor about weaning an infant from the bottle when he or she is 12 to 14 months old.
  - Don't dip a baby's pacifier in sugar or sugary liquids.
  - Don't add sugar to a child's food.
  - Clean a baby's teeth and gums with a damp cloth or a soft toothbrush after each feeding.
  - Take a baby to the dentist as soon as the first tooth appears.
  - Teach a baby to drink from a cup by his or her first birthday.
  - Make sure a baby is getting the right amount of fluoride. If drinking water does not contain fluoride, ask a doctor or dentist about fluoride supplements.
- It is important to take good care of a child's baby teeth. The Oral and Dental Health Resource Center website states that baby teeth play an important role by helping children speak clearly, bite and chew food. Baby teeth also save space for the permanent teeth and help guide them into place.

When caring for a child's teeth, parents should:

- Wipe a child's gums with a clean, damp gauze or washcloth.
- Once a child's teeth come in, brush them twice a day using fluoridated toothpaste.

- Use a soft, age-appropriate toothbrush.
- Use a small amount of toothpaste to brush teeth of a child under 2 years old.
- Between 2 and 5 years old, dispense a pea-size amount of toothpaste and perform or assist your child's tooth brushing.
- As soon as two teeth touch each other, floss between them once a day.
- Talk to a doctor or dentist about fluoride if your child drinks water that isn't fluoridated.

- Brush a child's teeth a second time. Most children won't be able to brush their teeth well on their own until they are about 8 years old.
- Children who are at high risk for cavities can get sealants placed on their teeth. Sealants are placed over the grooves of teeth to protect them from decay.

Encouraging healthy habits goes a long way. Make dental visits enjoyable for a child. Set a good example by taking care of your own personal oral hygiene and health. Encourage brushing and flossing. Give a child healthy snacks such as fresh fruits, vegetables and cheeses.

For more information or to schedule an appointment, call the dental clinic at 479-2210.

Peer pressure: Understanding causes, effects

by Tech. Sgt. Craig Guthridge
86th Communications Squadron

Peer pressure is a part of everyday life, and we don't often think about it while it's happening to us. Although we like to believe it is just limited to certain categories of youth groups, it is a common part of adulthood, especially young adults.

A simple definition of peer pressure is the encouragement or distress placed on one individual from another of the same social group with the expected result of conformity. Peer pressure can be positive or negative; however, it is most often regarded in a negative way.

The argument can be made that incidents related to peer pressure are caused by a lack of belonging or low self-esteem. One's need for acceptance by another individual or social group can cause a change in their state of harmony resulting in conformity. Sadly, the need for acceptance can arguably overpower one's own morality or confidence, creating a shift in identity to match that required by his or her peers.

Individuals often picture themselves in certain social groups; it is possible they believe they should be a member of certain peer groups based on attractive features such as beauty, intelligence, coolness or strength.

Individuals who suffer internal conflicts between meeting social needs and maintaining a sense of self may not recognize the impacts of social conformity. For example, "I want to be a part of that group, so I'll change my behavior or appearance to fit in." Because social media is accessible almost anywhere at any time, it can intensify the effects of peer pressure and cyber-bullying with the endgame of conformity or isolation.

The military is not immune to this psychosocial phenomenon. Although military members are well trained, the bulk of the force is made up of impressionable, young adults who are still discovering who they are, even when they have convinced themselves they already know. Our leaders also experience positive and negative forms of peer pressure. However, individuals in these positions are often better conditioned to cope with the increased stress.

The culture of reckless and abusive behavior can be a reaction to peer pressure from immature individuals. Inebriation and over-intoxication are not parallels to fun; they are signs of dangerous social conduct encouraged by toxic relationships. We may make inaccurate assumptions regarding the reasons for the changes our subordinates display, which is why we are required and trained, as wingmen and leaders, to ask the questions that lead to the cause.

As members of the military, the education and training to which we are subjected is never-ending. Education is an effective tool in the battle against issues such as sexual assault, substance abuse, violence, bullying, etc. However, peer pressure is not something we often discuss. No matter how much education and training is developed, we cannot control the human condition; we can only inform our Airmen to make the best choice possible. Individuals must monitor and adjust their own behavior as adults are expected to do. This infers one's ability to recognize peer pressure, deal with it professionally, seek help if needed, and identify when he or she may be unconsciously applying peer pressure toward others.

If you find the people you surround yourself with are constantly encouraging behaviors that go against your own morale barriers, it might be a good time to reassess these relationships and make a change. Peer pressure is not a subject of everyday conversation in the workplace; however, as friends, co-workers and leaders, we should make an effort to recognize the causes and effects in order to maintain a strong military force.

Roll out on Vogelweh's new roller rink

Airman 1st Class Jordan Castelan
 86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

Just like Optimus' favorite line, the call to "roll out" on Vogelweh has been heard, and with the opening of the new Crossroads Community Center Annex and roller rink, KMC residents have all the spark needed to visit the newly transformed facility.

Stocked with a brand new roller rink, a Wi-Fi lounge and an E-Street Cafe, the 86th Force Support Squadron has equipped the new center with more attractions than Cybertron.

"Rejuvenating and revitalizing Vogelweh has been a key concern," said Chief Master Sgt. Steven Mandell, 86th FSS superintendent. "We created a new environment for families and people of all ages to come enjoy themselves in a safe and secure location."

Attendees of the opening ceremony quickly began to enjoy the services offered. Within the first few minutes, skaters began to roll out and race along the track.

"It's certainly a great new way to stay active," said Elizabeth Krywanczyk, 86th FSS recreation assistant. "Winter is coming, but everyone can come here and listen to music, grab some coffee and lap around our new rink."

Skaters rushed onto the rink, and the facility was quickly filled with the laughter and smiles of all those in attendance.

Skaters enjoy the newly opened Cross Roads Community Center for the first time Nov. 1 on Vogelweh. The Crossroads Community Center offers the KMC a new way to spend time with family and friends of all ages.

"I was really looking forward to the opening," said Joseph Martin, 15, son of Lt. Col. John Martin, NATO Logistics branch head. "It's been pretty interesting so far. I came with a group of friends, and we've all been having a good time skating and laughing."

Children and teenagers weren't the only one sharing in on the laughter. Parents and Airmen also made appearances.

"Having a new, safe and friendly opportunity for families to come out and spend time together definitely has a positive impact on the installation's mood," said Monty Bussey, parent of 14-year-olds Chamonti and Ymanijones Bussey. "As a parent, I'm really glad there's another option for me and my family to spend time with each other."

Bussey added that his children were enjoying the time spent at the community center as well.

"We've been having an awesome time," Chamonti and Ymanijones said. "The skating is great, and we both plan on coming back with friends and having another great day here."

Whether it's enjoying some family time, having fun with friends or attending events for those 18 or older, the Crossroads Community Center offers a good time. For more information, call 489-5494.

Education Notes

Lunch and Learn

Parents of students at Vogelweh Elementary School are invited to attend the next Lunch and Learn from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. Wednesday in the school library. Participants will learn about the various assessments the students take and how that testing information is used to help their children. School counselors will also give parents some tips to help make the most of their upcoming parent-teacher conference. Parents may bring a bag lunch. Light desserts will be served.

'I Hate Shakespeare'

Ever wonder why there is so much fuss about Shakespeare? Can anyone understand his jokes anymore? Did they ever? What's the deal with those "slings and arrows of outrageous fortune"? Join the Ramstein High School cast of "I Hate Shakespeare" on a comedic dash as they fracture his most famous works with a series of irreverent sketches, complete with guest appearances from Jerry Springer, zombies and a talking cow. The production takes place Nov. 21 to 23 in the RHS great hall. Doors open at 6:30 p.m. and the show starts at 7. Tickets cost $4 in advance and $5 at the door. There will also be a bake sale at intermission with proceeds benefiting the RHS drama department.

Big Band Jazz for Dessert

Ramstein High School hosts Big Band Jazz for Dessert at 7 p.m. Dec. 5 in the RHS great hall. The evening will feature the RHS Jazz Limited and special guest artist Staff Sgt. What did you learn from your experience in the military?: "Trust your co-workers and subordinates. Don't tell them how to do something. Rather, tell them what needs to be done. Give them the big picture. They will almost always surprise you with their ingenuity by finding a better way to get the desired result. Treat your Senior NCOs with the utmost respect they deserve and have earned. Successful military leaders know they must rely upon the professional advice and expertise of their organization's NCOs."

as a U.S. legal holiday to honor the end of a war that was passed in 1938, Nov. 11 was designated and known as 'Armistice Day.'" As such, this new legal holiday honored World War I veterans. In 1954, the 83rd U.S. Congress amended the Act of 1938 by striking out the word "Armistice" and inserting the word "Veterans." With the approval of this legislation on June 1, 1954, Nov. 11 became a day to honor American veterans of all wars.

Children honor St. Martin in lantern processions

by Petra Lessoing

86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

On Monday, Germans will observe St. Martin's Day, and children and their parents will be seen walking in lantern processions throughout the KMC.

Nov. 11 is the day to honor St. Martin, the patron saint of the poor and a friend of children.

In Kaiserslautern and villages in the Kaiserslautern county, parishes and kindergartens will organize lantern processions where children will carry lanterns they created through town while singing songs about St. Martin. Usually, the procession starts at a church and proceeds to a public square. St. Martin will accompany the children dressed as a Roman soldier on horseback.

When the procession reaches the square, a play about St. Martin will be performed, a bonfire will be lit and Martin's pretzels will be distributed.

In Landstuhl, St. Martin's parade will begin at 6 p.m. Sunday with a play at Heilig-Geist-Kirche and end at the Altenzentrum (meeting place for senior citizens) with a bonfire and the sale of Martin's pretzels, tea and Glühwein.

In Kaiserslautern, a lantern procession will start at 6 p.m. Monday from St. Martin's Church near St. Martinsplatz at the start of Steinstrasse and end in front of the Rathaus (city hall). Here, St. Martin will light the bonfire.

In Ramstein-Miesenbach, festivities will start at 6 p.m. Monday at the Catholic church. Then, the lantern procession will head through town, accompanied by St. Martin and musicians. Afterward, the St. Martin's play will begin, the bonfire will be lit, and pretzels and Glühwein will be available.

About St. Martin

Martin of Tours was born in the year 316 or 317 as the son of a Roman civil servant. At age 15, he joined the Emperor's cavalry.

One cold, winter day, he was riding through the country when a shivering beggar came his way asking for alms. Since Martin had neither food nor money, he cut his robe in half with his sword and gave a piece to the freezing man.

The story goes that the following night, Jesus appeared in Martin's dream and explained how he had been the freezing beggar, to whom Martin had given half his robe.

This event changed the soldier's life; Martin left the army, got baptized and became a student of Hilarius of Poitiers. In 356, after Martin's teacher was banned and he failed to convert his father and others to the teachings of Hilarius, he left for an island near Genua, where he lived as a hermit.

In 360, Martin gave up his solitary life to join Hilarius again who returned to Poitiers. In 361, he founded the first Gallic monastery in Liguge. In 371, the clergy and the people from Tours elected him for bishop. In 375, he established Marmoutier, a monastery for ascetic life and a school for bishops.

Martin kept trying to evangelize pagans. On Nov. 8, 397, during a pastoral trip to Candes, he died. Thousand of monks, consecrated virgins and others went to his funeral on Nov. 11.

Years later, a basilica with the St. Martin Abbey was built on top of Martin's gravesite. King Chlodwig elected Martin as patron of the Franks.

The tradition of the lanterns goes back to former times when people lit candles to honor a saint and when lanterns were used to decorate a town in preparation of a bishop's visit.

The custom of lighting a bonfire after the lantern procession represents the beginning of festivities. In former times, after all the work on the fields had been completed, it was time to celebrate, drink and eat. Traditionally, a fat goose and sweet bread were served.

One legend says that St. Martin died after eating a whole goose at a single meal. Another legend says Martin was hiding to avoid his election as Bishop of Tours, but chattering geese revealed his hiding place. The tradition of eating a "Martin's goose" at this time of year has been kept. Many restaurants in the KMC added Martin's goose with dumplings and red cabbage to their menus. Even on Christmas, Germans like to serve goose.

Besides the traditional lantern processions, some other festivities honoring St. Martin are scheduled to take place:

- The Martinus wine fest will be held today to Monday in the wine growing village of St. Martin, south of Neustadt.

- A Martini carnival with rides, arts and crafts presentations, St. Martin's fire, vendors and children's activities is scheduled to take place today to Tuesday.

- Wallhalben will host a Martini market with vendors' stands and food and beverage booths Saturday.

- Dahn will hold its traditional Martini market with vendors and a small carnival Sunday. Stores will be open in the afternoon.

Trunk-or-Treat

Soldiers and families with the 10th Army Air and Missile Defense Command gather for a pre-Halloween Trunk-or-Treat event Oct. 30 on Rhine Ordnance Barracks. Children and parents in costume made their way from one vehicle to the next for a chance to satisfy their sweet tooth with all types of holiday treats. Organizers said they were pleased by the turnout, with the cool weather doing little to dampen the spirits of those in attendance.

BOSS travels into Baumholder's past with assistant city mayor

Story and photos by Bernd "Bernie" Mai

U.S. Army Garrison Baumholder Public Affairs

After touring Baumholder's old city hall, Pfc. Katarus Moore, president of Better Opportunities for Single Service Members, said it was a perfect way to get to know more about Baumholder's history.

Assistant City Mayor Michael Röhrig welcomed approximately 16 American and numerous German guests in front of the old city hall before explaining to them Baumholder's history.

Historical pictures and documents, domestic and farming equipment and tools, and a model depicting Baumholder in the year 1760 are just a few of the displays in the museum and in the historical room, located in the old city hall.

Röhrig was assisted by Nicole Bier, Göttschied Elementary School principal and member of the Baumholder partnership committee.

"The idea for this special tour was born at the German-American Stammtisch," said Bier, who attends the social gathering every Wednesday at the Hotel Zum Stern on a regular basis.

Three of the Soldiers who participated in the tour arrived in Baumholder just one day before. Moore, who encouraged them to join the tour said, "I wanted to bring my comrades to this German-American event. There is no better way to get to know our hosts here at Baumholder and to learn about the city."

Staying healthy during the holidays

by Staff Sgt. Leslie Keopka
86th Airlift Wing Public Affairs

The holidays are right around the corner whether everyone is ready for them or not. Holidays come with celebrations, social gatherings and lots of delicious food and drinks. Having a positive mindset and solid plan will help get you through the winter month festivities, all while staying on a healthy path.

Staying fit to fight is a 24/7 task for military members, and holidays are not a time to break from a normal routine. People can participate in the holiday celebrations and gatherings without steering away from their normal eating and exercise routines.

“It is important to remember feasting and food-centered celebrations are a part of the human experience,” said 2nd Lt. Lindsey Leitz, 86th Aerospace Medicine Squadron nutrition program manager. “We should embrace them and truly look forward to partaking in them.”

Knowing correct serving sizes will help when trying to control portions, and knowing how much to consume instead of filling up the plate is the key.

“Meat and protein servings should be the size of a deck of cards, and fruits and cooked vegetables should be the size of half a baseball,” Leitz said. “The easiest place to start with portion control is to use a smaller plate. Standing farther from the serving table will also keep you from continuously grabbing more food.”

Although some may think fasting the day of a holiday gathering is the answer to being able to indulge in a big meal guilt free, this is incorrect. Not eating all day can cause overeating and overindulging. Eating lower calorie meals throughout the day and saving the majority of a person’s daily calorie intake for the big feast can prevent excessive consumption.

“Establish a plan before the holidays arrive, whether it is sticking to eating right on weeks where holiday meals will be occurring or sticking to your three-days-a-week workout plan,” Leitz said.

Being firm to an exercise regime will help you stay on the right path during the holidays and winter months. Exercising not only helps you stay healthy and active, but it can also help relieve holiday and winter time stress. Ramstein offers several options for continuing a workout routine.

“If you cannot tolerate the colder weather, exercise indoors,” said Cesar Alvarez, 86th Aerospace Medicine Squadron exercise physiologist. “The Ramstein Aquatic Center has an indoor heated pool. The Southside Fitness Center, Northside Fitness Center and Vogelweh Fitness Center offer a variety of fitness classes.”

There are also a variety of helpful tools offered by the Health and Wellness Center. The HAWC offers a Battle of the Bulge class from November through January. They also offer a Healthy Eating 101 class multiple times a month teaching basic nutrition to anyone with access to base.

The holidays may be around the corner, but with the proper preparation, dedication to a healthy lifestyle and using the programs available on Ramstein, KMC members can add fun without adding the pounds.

For more information on upcoming health and fitness classes, contact the HAWC, located in Bldg. 2117 Annex, at 480-4292 or 06371-74-4292.

Turkey Trot 5K Fun Run

Join in the Turkey Trot 5K Fun Run for a chance to win one of 10 free turkeys for your holiday dinner. Show off your running skills or power-walk the 5K and burn off those pre-Thanksgiving calories. The Turkey Trot will take place Nov. 16 at the Rhine Ordnance Barracks Special Events Center. Register on the day of the event between 8:30 and 9:30 a.m. A course briefing will be held at 9:45 a.m. and the run begins at 10. Open to U.S. ID cardholders. Must be 12 years and older to enter into the raffle. Pets on a leash are welcome. Cost is $5. For more information, call 493-2087 or 0631-3406-2087, or visit www.kaiserslautern.armymwr.com.

Coaches, captains meeting

The cross country team coaches and captains meeting will be held at 6 p.m. Nov. 21 at the Rhine Ordnance Barracks Physical Fitness Center, Bldg. 172. Now is the time to form your team to participate in next year’s cross country events. Open to U.S. ID cardholders 18 years and older. For more information, contact Quinton Floyd at 493-2087 or 0631-3406-2087, or quinton.floyd.civ@mail.mil.

Turkey Trot

The Ramstein Roadrunners sponsor their annual Turkey Trot from 8 a.m. to 1 p.m. Nov. 28 at Mehrzweckhalle Miesebach, Am Kiefernkopf 22, 66877 Ramstein-Miesebach. There will be trail distances of 5km and 10km. This year’s Turkey Trot is the 75th IVV wandering (walk) the Roadrunners have sponsored since the club was founded in 1973. This is a great way to see the local area and participate in the uniquely German sport of wandering. Food and beverages will be available for purchase in the start hall. For more information on the walk or to sign up as a volunteer, contact the club at ramstein-roadrunners@yahoo.com or 06374-801179.

Indoor fall soccer clinics

Sign up your child or youth for SKIES Unlimited indoor fall soccer clinics, taught by professional soccer coaches. Clinics are held until December at the Special Events Center, Bldg. 237 on Rhine Ordnance Barracks, for ages 3 to 18. To find out more or to enroll, contact Family and Morale, Welfare and Recreation One Stop Shop, Bldg. 3810 on Landstuhl Post, or Parent Central Services, Bldg. 2898 on Pulaski Barracks, at 493-4516/4122 or 0631-3406-4516/4122.

Recreational soccer

At The Movies

Visit www.kaiserslauternamerican.com/movies.php for details

Ender's Game (PG-13) — Seventy years after a horrific alien war, an unusually gifted child is sent to an advanced military school in space to prepare for a future invasion.
Starring Asa Butterfield and Harrison Ford.

Gravity (PG-13) — On a seemingly routine spacewalk, Dr. Ryan Stone, a brilliant medical engineer on her first shuttle mission, and veteran astronaut Matt Kowalsky, in command of his last flight before retiring, run into disaster. The shuttle is destroyed, leaving Stone and Kowalsky completely alone — tethered to nothing but each other and spiraling out into the blackness. The deafening silence tells them they have lost any link to Earth.
Starring Sandra Bullock and George Clooney.

FEDERALLY INSURED BY NCUA
 *Rate shown is Annual Percentage Rate (APR), accurate as of 10/11/13 and subject to change without notice. A .35% reduction includes a .35% discount for direct deposit and automatic payment (example: 2.49% APR less .35% = 2.14%). A $15,000 auto loan with a rate of 2.14% APR for 60 months. Monthly payment is approximately $263.84. Total finance charge is approximately $830.21. Direct deposit of entire net pay must be maintained. Loan approval and APR subject to credit worthiness. Individual must be a member of Service Credit Union or eligible for membership to apply. Offer available on new, used and current Service Credit Union auto loans. Current does not include refinances on Service Credit Union loans. Match Plus applies to auto loan terms and restrictions that are consistent with Service Credit Union's (SCU) 63-75 month loan rates. Other loan terms do not apply. If SCU cannot beat competitors' APR, we will credit $100 to a qualifying member's Service Credit Union account up to 30 days after Service Credit Union application, upon the applicant presenting a copy of their signed loan note & disclosure from the competitor. Certain restrictions apply on dealer financing. Private, non-commercial loan rates and terms are excluded from this promotion. Offer subject to change without notice.
